5 O'CLOCK EDITION.

Recent utterances from the official leaders of organized labor societies throw considerable light upon the attitude of these bodies toward some of the prominent questions of the day. They may be only the expression of individual opinion, still they are invested with official sanction, and may be taken as an indication of the drift of sentiment among workingmen. It is noticeable that less recrimination against the employer, and less magnifying of the alleged wrongs of the employee mark the latest authoritative deliverances of organized labor. The uppermost topic in the minds of the laboring men at the present time is the question of the eight-hour movement. Naturally workmen would like to see the time of a day's work diminished. As a consequence, all the various Orders favor the movement. But there is at the same time, however, a great diversity of opinion as to the way in which such an innovation is to be brought about. The most sensible men among laborers readily appreciate the serious character of the discussion now going on. They reason correctly that nothing must be done to imperil manufacturing and other forms of industries, and most of them are sensible of the fact that many trades receive about as high wages as the profits of business will allow. The question arises whether the time of a day's work can be lessened two hours and the wages remain the same, without inflicting serious injury upon all forms of profitable production. Hence there is a commendable hesitation on the part of a number of these organizations in espousing the cause advanced by the Federation of Labor that the new order of things be inaugurated on the 1st of next May. Then, as to the means employed to force this demand, the sentiment among the Knights of Labor and the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers is emphatically against a general strike. Mr. Powderly declares that a sudden change to the eight-hour system would prove disastrous to manufacturers and commerce. And he speaks most decidedly against the hope of the revolution being realized through the shock of a general suspension of labor. These sentiments are practically those of Mr. Arthur and amount to the repudiation of the views of President Gompers that the eight-hour movement can be carried into effect so early as next year. Organized labor has accomplished much in relieving the conditions of the American workmen, and the outlook is hopeful, if only the voice of reason can be heard with reference to urging forward such fundamental reforms as the eight-hour system.

W. J. HILANDS of Cleveland, O., who represents a Holland syndicate, informs the Austin Reveille that the people he represents and capitalists in and about Boise City, Idaho, purpose extending the Nevada Central Railroad from Battle Mountain to Boise City and other camps, making the whole length of the road 365 miles. The company is now awaiting certain concessions, which, when consummated, will cause the work to be commenced.

ELLA WHEELER WILCOX says: "If I were a man, in my general association with women, I would treat them as nearly as possible as I would like other men to treat my sister or my wife." In most climates that would be to ice cream or oysters.

SENATOR WALKER of Meridian proposes to introduce into the Mississippi Legislature at the coming session a bill "prohibiting any negro or man with negro blood in his veins from holding a political office."

Valuable Crop. Secretary Scott of the San Bernardino, Cal., Board of Trade, after a careful revision of former statistics, says the last crop of San Bernardino county oranges brought the producers $744,000 cash.

J. Westlake Has established himself in the boot and shoe shop formerly occupied by Wm. Hart, opposite Postoffice, where he is prepared to do all kinds of stylish work at the lowest prices. Ladies fine shoes a specialty. Repairing neatly and promptly done. 03

A LITTLE SHORT.

Idaho Politicians Will Have to Wait a While.
The Hailey News-Miner says: "According to the Boise Democrat the population of Idaho is about 65,000. It is based upon the vote of the last general election, as follows: Dubois received 8,151 votes; Hawley, 6,404; Buck, 1,458. Total, 16,013. Allowing a ratio of four inhabitants to one, which is all that can be claimed by the most anxious advocates of Statehood, it gives less than 65,000. Allowing liberally for immigration, our population cannot exceed 70,000 today. In Boise, Owyhee, Alturas, Lemhi, Custer, Kootenai and Shoshone counties the chief industry is mining, and families are scarce; therefore there are not more than three persons to each voter in these counties. Our Boise neighbor's estimate of the population is correct, and all the office-seekers cannot alter the figures."

Color and Crime.
Under the above heading the New York Sun says: In 1880 there were 42,294 white prisoners in the United States and 16,263 colored prisoners. The white criminals were nine-hundredths of one per cent. of the total white population; the negro criminals, twenty-four hundredths of one per cent. of the entire negro population. In considering these figures, however, it must be borne in mind that the negroes are tried principally by white juries, before white judges, and two deductions may be made, either that the negro race is nearly three times as wicked as the white, or that the white has a "pull" three times greater than that of the negro.

Our Sister Republics.
Referring to our visitors from Central and South America, the St. Louis Post Dispatch says: The people of the Central and South American States have never received anything from Europe except armies and attempts at conquest and oppression. From the United States they have obtained their spirit of liberty, progressive ideas and productive inventions. Their natural friends and commercial allies are the people of the United States and the sooner they recognize this fact the better it will be for them. The trip of the Pan-American delegates over this country cannot fail to bring excellent results in this direction.

San Francisco Meat Market.
Following are the rates for whole carcasses from slaughterers to dealers:
BEEF—First quality, 66¢; second quality, 64¢; third quality, 62¢; 4th quality, 60¢. LAMB—Quotable at 66¢; 64¢; 62¢; 60¢. PORK—Live hogs, on foot, grain fed, medium, 58¢; heavy, 60¢; soft, 4th, 62¢; dressed hogs, 72¢; 70¢; 68¢; 66¢.

Should be Severely Punished.
Fred and Herbert Kolfe and W. A. Hill, the three young villains who displaced a switch on the Northern Pacific Railroad near Albany, Or., in July, causing the death of engineer Jack Miller and fireman Guthrie, have been indicted for murder in the second degree.

NEW TO-DAY.

THE # OPERA HOUSE DRY GOODS STORE.

Fall * Announcements!

It is now generally conceded by men of science who attend to all the weather experiment stations on this coast that this locality in particular is going to be very cold this winter. In consequence of these indications,

C. W. BOOTON

Went to San Francisco and spent the past two weeks purchasing a Stock of Fall and Winter Goods,

The giganticness of which cannot be fully realized in any way but by calling to see it at the OPERA HOUSE DRY GOODS STORE, and will only say that the

Prices at which he intends to sell his new stock will be unprecedented

In the history of dry goods in Reno, as "Quick Sales and Small Profits" is his motto in business.

To enumerate his stock and give it entire justice he should have all the columns of a newspaper devoted to his advertisement only, but as he cannot get any more room in the columns of this paper, he will only enumerate some of his special heavy importations. First—His stock of

Men's Underwear

At the following prices, note them:
20 dozen of men's white merino shirts and drawers at 35c each, regular price, 75c.
31 dozen of men's silver grey shirts and drawers at 75c each, regular price, $1.00.
49 dozen of men's shirts and drawers, California grey, at $1.00 each, regular price, $2.00.
52 dozen Virginia & Truckee shirts and drawers, all-wool, at $1.50 each.
These goods are of special value and sell on sight. See them.
334 dozen extra heavy shirts and drawers, Oregon Mills manufacture, at $2.00 each. These goods would be counted cheap at $3.
35 dozen Norfolk and New Brunswick brown vienna at $2.50 each, generally sold for $3.50 each.
50 dozen men's seamless Rockford socks at $1.50 per dozen that are being sold everywhere in this city for $3.00 per dozen.

An Endless Variety of Ladies', Misses' and Children's Undewear,

In all grades. In the

Comforter and Blanket Line

It is well known he is headquarters for those goods. Comforters ranging in price from $1.00 to $5.00 each. Golden Gate white and colored blankets are a specialty.

In the Clothing Department

He carries a complete and well-selected stock. Note a few of his specialties in this line, viz: 25 suits of men's, all-wool, English colored corkscrew, custom-made at only $20.00 a suit, usually retailed for $35. A fine line of black corkscrew suits at $20.00. A fine line of mixed English cheviot suits at $18.00. A very fine line of black corkscrew suits at $12.50 a suit. The usual price asked for these goods in the city is $17.00.

A Large Assortment of Hats and Caps Always on Hand.

In the Dress Goods Department

He has added a fine and well-selected stock of all the leading shades of French armures, French brocades and English chevots, which are offered at prices that defy competition.

In the Shoe Department

It is well known that he is the only agent in this city for the ## Famous Nolan Brothers' Shoes.

He has also in stock Caho, Nickleburg & Co.'s fine shoes, whose make are now very popular.

Calicoes and Gingham.

In Endless Variety.

Having purchased the above goods for CASH ONLY, is a sure guarantee that he can sell goods at a lower price than any house that purchases goods on long time.

To convince yourself that all the above statements are correct, call at the JOTTINGS.

J. J. Becker will on to-morrow, treat his patrons to an extra fine Sunday lunch.

E. C. Leadbetter exactly understands how to mix and grind coffee. Try it once and you will call again.

C. A. Thurston has a nice stock of walking canes, pocket cutlery and all the best brands of Lorrillard's tobacco.

C. J. Brookins carries neatly bound copies of all the most popular authors, which he will sell either single or in sets.

There is no article to be found in a first-class grocery that cannot be had at J. N. Wallace's Commercial Row store.

Before paying two prices for your winter hat or bonnet, do not fail to examine Miss Emma Gibbs' stock and prices.

George Becker's Granite Saloon is where you can always obtain a Sunday lunch which is superior to an ordinary meal.

By employing none but first-class barbers, John Beitz is able to "do up" all patrons without compelling them to wait until too late for church.

INDIANS SENTENCED.

For Various Murders and Other Crimes.

A press dispatch from Globe, Arizona, contains the following: The District Court of Gila county, Arizona, adjourned October 22d, after pronouncing the following sentences: The Indian who killed Lieutenant Mott on March 10, 1887, was sentenced to be hanged; one Indian was given life imprisonment for murdering a freighter named Caspar; one for the murder of another Indian was sentenced to life imprisonment; one for ten years for the murder of an Indian; four for seven years each for a murderous assault on Chief of Scouts A. Sieber; and a Mexican one year for embezzlement—a total of nine Indians and one Mexican sentenced.

A Woman's Discovery.

"Another wonderful discovery has been made and that too by a lady in this county. Disease fastened its clutches upon her and for seven years she withstood its severest tests but her vital organs were undermined and death seemed imminent. For three months she seemed incessantly and could not sleep. She bought of us a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption and was so much relieved on taking the first dose that she slept all night and with one bottle was miraculously cured. Her name is Mrs. Luther Lutz." Thus writes W. C. Hamrick & Co. of Shelby N. C.—Get a free trial bottle at S. J. Hodgkinson's Drug Store.

The Best There Is.

A new typewriter has been invented by the party who invented half of the Remington and all of the Caligraph. It has no ribbon, no wooden bars, but is all steel, prints true and without any blur. It costs an even hundred dollars, and is worth two of any other machine. It prints better, better longer, is easier to learn and works faster, besides other recommendations.

C. A. BRAGG, Agent.

The Verdict Unanimous.

W. D. Sult, Druggist, Bippus, Ind., testifies: "I can recommend Electric Bitters as the very best remedy. Every bottle sold has given relief in every case. One man took six bottles, and was cured of Rheumatism of 10 years' standing." Abraham Hare, druggist, Belleville, Ohio, affirms: "The best selling medicine I have ever handled in my 20 years' experience, is Electric Bitters." Thousands of others have added their testimony, so that the verdict is unanimous that Electric Bitters do cure all diseases of the Liver, Kidneys or Blood. Only a half dollar a bottle, at S. J. Hodgkinson's drugstore.

Bucklen's Arnica Salve.

The best salve in the world for cuts, bruises, oozes, ulcers, salt rheum, fever sores, chapped hands, chilblains, corns and all skin eruptions, and positively cures piles or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box. For sale by Hodgkinson & Co., Reno.

Excellent, reliable and economical are the stoves and ranges sold by Lange & Schmitt; every house and store should have them. Call and inspect before purchasing.

Go to Lange & Schmitt for ranges, parlor and cook stoves; best assortment in the State.

THE CALIFORNIA SOCIETY FOR THE SUPPRESSION OF VICE, San Francisco, July 10th, 1898.

I took a severe cold upon my chest and lungs and did not give it proper attention; it developed into bronchitis, and in the fall of the same year I was threatened with consumption. Physicians ordered me to a more congenial climate, and I came to San Francisco. Soon after my arrival I commenced taking Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites regularly three times a day. In ten weeks my weight increased from 155 to 180 pounds and over; the cough meantime ceased.

LITTLE GIRL ON THE WALL.

Now the daylight is done, and the curtains are drawn, And the kydids sing all alone on the lawn, And my little one's cries, as she comes at my call: "Can't I play with the little black girl on the wall?"

Who she's dollies that cry and a dog that can bark, A Mass and a fully equipped Noah's ark. What delighted her most, ever since she could crawl, Has been what she calls the black girl on the wall.

"To bedtime, and Bessie, our one little lamb, Comes bleating: 'O, mamma, I'm lonely, I am! I've no brother nor sister—I've no one at all But that dear little darling black girl on the wall!"

"I don't see her by daytime—O, where does she go? But at twilight she follows me—now to and fro— Wherever I turn, and if I get a fall, Why, then, down goes the little black girl on the wall!"

"Mamma, what does she eat, and, O! what does she drink, And what does she do all day long, do you think? Now she's little like me and next minute she's tall, But I never can catch that black girl on the wall!"

So our pet prattles on, when she's in for a race With her shadow. (O! isn't life just such a chase!) And she dances like mad down the fire-lighted hall, As she hunts for the little black girl on the wall.

TWO WAYS.

Which Do You Think Was the More Practical?

Rev. Walter Cobbett was called to a large and fashionable church in Philadelphia about twelve years ago. He was a young, sickly man, in deadly earnest in his work. In fact, his youth, pallor and fiery zeal gave a force to his words which neither his thoughts nor character possessed; for he was but a shallow thinker, and easily led by strong-willed companions.

The committee sent by the Rittenhouse Square Presbyterian Church to find a pastor discovered him by some odd chance in a mining village near Pittstown, and were greatly impressed by his eloquence. They were all so rich, shrewd men, fond of the good things of life, from music to a perfectly cooked dinner.

"But," said Judge Lowe, "we don't want a speculator or a bon vivant, like poor old Dr. Gray, in the pulpit again. This young fellow is godly and full of zeal, a great orator. He not only knows in what he believes, but he will make us all believe it."

When Mr. Cobbett, with Milly and the baby, came up from Coalton, Mrs. Lowe and the other fashionable women were delighted with the simple, unworldly flavor of their speech and manner. "So like the early Christians," Miss Agnes Lowe said, who was an artist, and therefore an authority on all early matters. They were invited to a round of dinners and receptions, and then Mr. Cobbett settled down in earnest to his work.

Young Leidy, one of his college chums who had just been ordained, spent a week with him, and the two men together tramped through the worst quarters of the city, from Naudain street to St. Mary's. They were both sympathetic, excitable, unused to the miseries of a great city.

They went from the filth and laziness of the quarter given up to "Dagons," to the negro slums, and from them to the vast mills, in which most of the operatives were saucy girls of from twelve to twenty years old. At night they discussed these scenes together.

"Nothing was so terrible to me," said Walter, "as those wretched Italians, content like animals to lie filthy and starving in the sun all day."

"The mill women seem to me the more desperate case," said James Leidy, "because they have sloughed off the brute. They are sharp and intelligent. They flaunt out in the evenings, each with her beaded dress and pinhead, going with her 'gent' to the quarter-dollar sociables or variety theaters. They come so near to respectability and usefulness, and yet are going straight to ruin!"

"My church must go to work at once," said Mr. Cobbett.

He spoke with a certain assurance of success. The membership of his church was so large and could number so many millions! Such a great broom would surely soon clean these Augean stables!

Mr. Leidy was silent for a long time. He said then: "Walter, I have almost determined to refuse the call to Pittsburgh, and to give myself up to work among these people. The board will send me as a missionary."

"It is very good in you, Mr. Leidy, but it is impossible. The board pays its city missionaries only the wages of a laboring man, and you have no idea what it costs to live here! Very different from Coalton."

"I should go down among the laboring men and live as they do," said Mr. Leidy. "If I am to help them, I must be with them. Besides, there may be a certain help to them in seeing how an educated man would live on the same income as their own."

"I fear you will find example a slow means of grace, James," said Mr. Cobbett. "If I can interest my people, we can make a tremendous united assault upon the slums. Working-men's clubs, industrial schools, societies for boys, young women and mothers. I have a grand idea."

When he was alone with his wife he said: "Poor Jim! I feel he will be sorely disappointed in that Quixotic venture. I wish he had such energy as ours to bring to bear upon the forces of evil!"

Never did two men attack the forces of evil with more earnest faith and tender pity for the ill-doers than these two young clerics. But their methods of attack were widely different.

James Leidy, when appointed city missionary, rented two rooms over a bakery down in the Neck. One was his sleeping room; in the other he held service, taught school, and in the evenings welcomed the men and boys who came there to read the papers or to offer them advice. He reached them one by one. The baker, Gus Schell, a drunken, good-natured fellow, was his first ally. He deplored to James the fact that "he lot of poor boys was going to the devil gambler's in that neighborhood," and willingly went to work to enfold them to the house that they might be converted. A singing-club was the bond by which James held them together. It required months to win them to decent ways and honesty, but it took years to convert Gus to a sober life. During those years he reckoned himself "the preacher's right-hand man." Through the boys he laid hold on the fathers, shrewd mechanics who looked upon religion as "wimmen's business," beggars whose only trade was trickery, saloon-keepers and professional thieves. The hold was often but slight, and led to nothing. But the worst thief or sot usually came feeling for his son, and a respect for the man who was trying to pull the boy up, especially when the man proved to be a wide-awake, keen fellow, not to be imposed on by him.

The mothers were more easily reached and less easily held. They cried grateful tears when they met the good minister who had made Sam a respectable boy, or kept Joe out of Movements; they came to the minister every evening, and sang the hymns with loud fervor. Sometimes James suspected that they were just as drunken, as slatternly and as vicious in their homes as before. But he had hardened himself against disappointment. In some fashion those people gradually took him and his teaching into their homes and lives. They sent for him to marry them, to get them out of jail, to bury their dead; when the diphtheria raged in Pin Court, "Parson Leidy" was called in before the doctor, he being just at hand, "and such a famous nurse." Tom Farrell, when he was sentenced to death, and urged to call in a minister, "reckoned that Leidy was the best of the lot;" and the grim Scotch weaver, Sampson, came to him in the dead of the night to tell him, with stern eyes and quivering jaw, his suspicion that his little Aggy was going to the bad.

"Dear, dear James; this is disheartening," said Mr. Cobbett, when he came down to visit his old chum. "You have been living here like a pauper for a year, and what have you accomplished? But three communicants! No hope yet of building a chapel!"

"I am coming nearer to them every day," said Leidy. "I make myself one with them. I try to drag them up, step by step."

"These little individual efforts of course suffer by comparison with great organized work," said Mr. Cobbett, with a slight tone of patronage. "Now, when our church begins her assault upon outside vice, you will find the moral atmosphere in this part of the city clear up very rapidly."

"What are your plans?"

"In the first place, organization. I have drilled my people ready to work. We are going to have a sewing-school, a mission Sunday-school, an industrial school for the boys, a working-men's club, a mother's association, a young girls' guild for mutual improvement, societies for the promotion of temperance and personal purity. These are all to be superintended by the members of the church. It would gratify you, James, to see how zealously the most fashionable matrons and gayest girls take hold of the idea. They are eager to begin."

"And who are the people on whom they are to work?"

"Who?" Mr. Cobbett waved his hands widely. "All the thieves, Magdalens, discharged convicts, paupers! None will be turned away. Our machinery is complete. I can not but believe, James, that the reform which we shall accomplish under God will be very great."

"When do you begin, Walter?"

"As soon as our church building is completed. It is to cost eighty thousand dollars."

"That is a large sum."

"The lot cost us thirty thousand. But it was a great bargain. It is in the rear of the church, in the most desirable part of the town. We could sell it now for double that sum. It will be the most complete building for parish work in the country. There will be apartments for all the schools, a library, gymnasium, reading-rooms, all perfectly equipped. We have fifty thousand subscribed. The remainder comes in slowly. You do not look satisfied, James. I thought you would rejoice in this great movement."

"How are you going to bring the thieves and paupers up to your great building?" said Leidy, abruptly. "It stands in the most fashionable quarter. They live miles away from it. The mountain will not go to Mahomet."

"We shall see, my dear sir," said Mr. Cobbett, with a complacent laugh. "I am surprised at Leidy," he told his wife afterwards. "He suggested a trifling difficulty as a block to our whole work."

When Mrs. Cobbett heard what it was she said, with an uneasy look: "I had thought of that."

A year later Mr. Leidy died with the Cobbetts, and went to a church meeting afterwards. It appeared to him that the relations between pastor and people were strained. Mr. Cobbett urged vehemently the payment of forty thousand dollars still due on the school building. The women of the church had been working energetically to that end. They had held fairs, strawberry festivals and bazaars of all nations. They had given concerts and organ recitals. They had gone from house to house soliciting subscriptions.

"Now," said Judge Lowe, "the fact is that they are tired. The building costs much more costly than was expected; the whole energy of the church has been directed into paying for this huge structure and for the appliances for teaching the dangerous classes; while, as we all know, the dangerous classes do not come to be taught. My opinion is that we had better sell out the whole concern, pay off the mechanics who have liens on it, and give the remainder of the money to foreign missions."

Mr. Cobbett quickly brought up some other subject for discussion. Judge Lowe met him when the conference was over, and laughed as he saw his pined, anxious face. "I'm sorry I worried you," he said. "But I tell you, Mr. Cobbett, this fad of yours is a dead weight. The church can not carry it. We have made a mistake somehow," he said, turning to Mr. Leidy. "The wretched poverty will not come to us. They like the privacy and darkness of their holes, like rats. The classes are filled with the children of well-to-do mechanics, who can afford to have them taught at ordinary schools. The ladies collected a number of mill girls, who came two or three times in fine clothes, and spent their time in staring at the gowns and hats of their teachers. As soon as they had displayed their money, they dropped off. I found six young ladies assembled to teach the sexton's daughter yesterday. The whole thing is a failure."

When the two clergymen were back in the study Walter turned to his friend. "Why should it be a failure?" he said, passionately. "These people need help, and we have it to give. Look, for instance, at the thousands of deceived girls in this city. We are told that there is no way open for them but utter ruin or death. We open ways for them. We are ready to teach them with more earnest faith and tender pity for the ill-doers than these two young clerics. But their methods of attack were widely different."

James Leidy, when appointed city missionary, rented two rooms over a bakery down in the Neck. One was his sleeping room; in the other he held service, taught school, and in the evenings welcomed the men and boys who came there to read the papers or to offer them advice. We have fifty thousand subscribed. The remainder comes in slowly. You do not look satisfied, James. I thought you would rejoice in this great movement."

"How are you going to bring the thieves and paupers up to your great building?" said Leidy, abruptly. "It stands in the most fashionable quarter. They live miles away from it. The mountain will not go to Mahomet."

"We shall see, my dear sir," said Mr. Cobbett, with a complacent laugh. "I am surprised at Leidy," he told his wife afterwards. "He suggested a trifling difficulty as a block to our whole work."

When Mrs. Cobbett heard what it was she said, with an uneasy look: "I had thought of that."

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Is a peculiar medicine. It is carefully prepared from Sarsaparilla, Dandelion, Mandrake, Dock, Pipsaw, Juniper Berries, and other well known and valuable vegetable remedies, by a peculiar combination, proportion and process, giving to Hood's Sarsaparilla curative power not possessed by other medicines. It effects remarkable cures where other preparations fail.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Is the best blood purifier before the public. It eradicates every impurity, and cures Scrofula, Salt Rheum, Boils, Pimples, all Humors, Dyspepsia, Biliousness, Sick Headache, Indigestion, General Debility, Catarrh, Rheumatism, Kidney and Liver Complaints, overcomes that tired feeling, creates an appetite and builds up the system.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Has met peculiar and unparalleled success at home. Such has become its popularity in Lowell, Mass., where it is made, that whole neighborhoods are taking it at the same time. Lowell druggists sell more of Hood's Sarsaparilla than of all other Sarsaparillas or blood
